

FIFA19

Mastering The Basic

Intro

The new FIFA19 is here and so is the ever-present need for its players to master this particular version. Naturally, like any of the previous games in this world-famous series, this sequel comes with its particular challenges and opportunities. To make sense of them, every player should have an access to the most important tips and tricks for FIFA19 - all of them can be put to good use in matches. Not just that, but the whole style of play can also be greatly improved because of it. Here is the list of the essential things all players of the FIFA series should know about the latest game in this great franchise.

Boxing The Attackers

FIFA19 comes with a very simple yet very effective command that is accomplished by pressing Up twice during an attack on the D-pad. When a player does this, the rest of the attackers in the squad will rush into the box, ready for a pass. This makes the chance of a successful shot inside of the goal a lot more likely, as well as exploiting a mistake by the defense.

Switching Players with the Right Stick

Usually, in FIFA19, players go for either LB or L1 to change and switch their players. However, there is also the possibility of using the right stick. The reason for this is to provide a more diverse player selection. L1 switches the players who are nearest to the ball. Of course, this is excellent for short-distance passes, but for anything longer, more players should be considered. This is where the right stick comes in.

Using Tactics

FIFA19 provides a huge range of tactical solutions for the matches, so going for the Dynamic Tactic menu should be a regular part of any well-rounded player. The same goes for the Quick Tactics option which allows for changes during the match itself. Both should be used whenever possible in or before a hard match.

Working with these tips and tricks can ensure that any player slowly but surely becomes a master in FIFA19.
